

Coma Story Press Release

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

“Coma Story” deals with lucid dreaming during coma.

A novel based on Diego Garcia depopulation.

St. Louis, MO--August, 20, 2010-- Affectionately called Gitmo, the Guantanamo Bay detention camp has become THE prominent American military base. Hence the Chagos Island's base near Mauritius, called Diego Garcia, lost its due top-spot and as well the forced relocation of those African inhabitants got overlooked. Coma Story is a moving fictional account of the islanders' quest to reclaim their native islands.

The narrator, a coma survivor, along with Diego Garcia native, Tarzan, conspires to gain back the British-controlled islands without violence. Sprinkled with humor, the story centers on lucid dreaming during the coma and the subsequent plot. Coma Story is neither tragedy nor indictment but inspiration.

For a limited time paperback version of Coma Story, normally priced at $14.95, will be available to the public at a 10% discount via the author's website.

About the Author: Stephen Manoj Thompson, Ph.D., is the author of “Land of Opportunity Forever”, a book acclaimed for its timely articulation of the reasoning and fix for our modern economic and social miscalculation. Thompson is passionate about helping people. It's this passion that helped him to craft Coma Story - his first fiction, covering the lives of a particular geographic location and incorporating historical facts into the story. Being a natural social writer, he shows the universe how to make a fresh start with any situation. However, Thompson is not shy about unpleasant details - in fact his raw and unapologetic point of view makes Coma Story a highly captivating read.
